

Bounded Hash Set

Use a semaphore to implement a “bounded” hash set (or any collection, for that matter), a set that provides additional semantics of a blocking bounded collection to the underlying set.

Note: Here, we need to use a Semaphore to turn the underlying collection into a blocking bounded collection. The semaphore is initialized to the desired “bound” for the collection.

The underlying Set implementation knows nothing about the bound.